About the project:

The importance of youth work engaging with young people digitally has not only been identified as a priority through Erasmus+ but also been highlighted by the COVID-19 pandemic with many activities moving online. In this training course, we will get to know digital youth work and its opportunities and challenges, as well as methods and tools that can be used both in the digital environment and in face-to-face activities.

This training course aims to give youth workers space to experience and share digital tools and approaches as well as investigate new opportunities, all the while having an eye on the realities and challenges of using them with young people.

There will be a particular focus on providing practical tools which youth workers can go away from the training with to use in their own youth work contexts.

What can you expect from this training (objectives):

- Developing a broader understanding of the opportunities and challenges in digital youth work
- Develop digital competences and recognise how to apply them in youth work
- Explore and review digital youth work tools and methodologies
- The chance to test traditional methods in digital spaces
- Opportunities to share your own expertise and learn from international peers
